A PLACE FOR FUTURE TEACHERS

If you're an education major, being part of our School of Education Living and Learning Community (LLC), located in Great Plains East, develop your skills and expand your knowledge while taking advantage of special opportunities to interact with your fellow students, faculty and alumni.

Located near the Millicent Atkins School of Education's Gerber Hall, Great Plains East is one of our new residence halls. With spacious rooms designed in a unique pod style, Great Plains East is the perfect place to live with your classmates.

As a member of the School of Education LLC you'll have a resident assistant and mentor who understands your academic needs. You'll connect with your faculty and advisors right in your residence hall with study sessions, office hours and social get-togethers.

You'll also have opportunities to take advantage of special programming designed just for you and your fellow resident.

PROGRAMMING FOR YOU

Study tables
Need to study for that big exam? Join your classmates down the hall and study throughout the night.

Speaker series
Come to our speaker series and get some special insight on the latest trends affecting the classroom from current teachers and Northern alumni.

Lesson plan and classroom activity planning
Pick the brains of your classmates for ideas on classroom activities and lesson plans. Your RA and mentor set-up special sessions to engage with other School of Education students.

Social time
Our social programs may be watching the latest from Netflix or playing board games in the lounge. It's all about helping you get to know each other.
