Dr. Brownfield,

As chair of the School of Mathematics and Social Sciences, I am responding to the request you sent Dr. Urla Marcus regarding permission from BHSU to offer AIS 101. BHSU has no problem with NSU offering AIS 101.

Subject: [EXT] Permission to Offer AIS 101

Drs. Freeland and Marcus,

To introduce myself, I am an Assistant Professor at Northern State University (NSU) in the Sociology department; I have been working with our American Indian Advisory Council to revamp our American Indian Studies minor. Our department would like to offer AIS 101 (Introductory Lakota I) starting Fall 2020. We are particularly excited about bringing this course to our campus. We are submitting an authority to offer form to begin offering this course next fall (see attached). We noticed BHSU and SDSU currently offer this course, and we are interested in your supportive feedback with our endeavors. If you would like additional details regarding the course and its purpose at NSU, please let me know. I appreciate your time, and look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks,
KRISTI BROWNFIELD, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor of Sociology
